Restricted voter comments:

- Donors will give more to a specific need
- Makes impact reporting easier
- We are a community-based hospital; we need restricted dollars in order to set us up for future independence success
- Donors care about specific projects and needs, not the annual fund
- Gives the donors a way to fund their interests
- Unrestricted is desired, but raise most in restricted
- Donors like to meet a specific need
- Specific needs rock
- Better to build relationship for future gifts
- Helps to meet a gift matching goal
- By giving to a specific need/passion, donors will be more inclined to trust and give an unrestricted gift
- Specific needs are more compelling and our individual basis is the same
- Sometimes the nonprofit knows best!
- Restricted dollars funds where we need support the most

Unrestricted voter comments:

- Because you need to fund infrastructure and that word isn't sexy
- Needs change and flexibility is important
- Can use funds where they are needed most
- The donor should trust the board to invest where there is the most need
- No restrictions = strong administration
- Can put funding where it needs to go
- Flexibility
- Only if the future of your nonprofit organization depends on it
- Can use for the program most in need
- Budget relief
- Money from heaven for priorities
- Allows us to use dollars where we need it most
- To meet the most pressing needs of the organization
- Can meet whatever needs arise and direct to area of need:
- Keep the lights on: to pay for administrative and other staff salaries
- Trust the organization
- Can be used where it's needed most
- Unrestricted gifts allow us to build the organization and provide more resources

Stories voter comments:

- Emotion, connectivity, humanity goes to the heart
 - Emotion drives decisions
 - Stories = heart
 - Stats are boring and irrelevant without context
 - It's more about the heart than the numbers
 - "Duh!"
 - Stories engage and stats provide back up to support stories
 - We can engage more donors with stories :-)
 - Our stories show our impact :-)
 - People give to people and need to relate personally to others
 - People make heart decisions - stories speak to them
 - How your organization changes lives inspires larger gifts
 - More impactful plus speaks from the heart
 - If the stories touch my or the staff's heart they will touch the donor too
 - Storytelling throughout time is real and relatable
 - Because stories move hearts and stays forever in our minds!
 - Stories share human connection which equals impact
 - Shares impact to both the donor and organization and speaks to the heart.
 - Stories are real
 - Stories are the heart connection
 - Stories! They articulate impact, compassion, other donors gratitude!
 - Stories connect people to causes
 - Stories pull at the heartstrings and compel donors to give more than facts and data
 - Ties in your mission and comes from the heart
 - Capture their hearts!
 - Stories and inspire donors to give!
 - Stories help donors see themselves
 - Stories inspire: stats stagnate!
 - Stories speak to donors about the impact of their gift
- Stories touch the heart, soul and mind
 - Transformational gifts come from stories
 - Stories are very interesting to donors: human effects by emotions
 - Stories through stats can feed the story
 - Donors want to see themselves
 - Stories inspire!
 - Donors and friends love to hear their impact!
 - Stories are more fun and engaging
 - Pulls at the heartstrings!
 - Stories show passion and reason (not numbers)
 - Stories speak for themselves
 - Stories pull at the heartstrings and draw donors in
 - "Heart" sign
 - It's always so much more inspiring to hear the impact of donations from the people who benefit
 - Stories bring out emotions and make connections
 - Stories are personal, they connect us with real people in real need.

Stats voter comments:

- Stories are short-term, stats are long-term
- How about telling a story with your stats!
- I can see longer and larger impact
- People want to see proof of How their money helps
- Stats inspire the stories
- The stats are behind the stories and show more impact
- Love stats to strengthen our stories
- Donors give more to advance proven results
- Stats back up the stories and give them a strong foundation
- “Heart sign”
- I’m an MBA and need to prove ROI
- Stats because partner agencies don’t know how to tell their story
- It’s all about the metrics of impact
- Facts tell stories
- Stories followed by stats that show their stories keep happening with the donors gifts
- Stats demonstrate ROI and drive budgets

Stories + Stats voter comments:

- Stories with stats produce the best results!... True story!
- Telling stories with stats or using stats to enhance the story!
- Depending on who I am speaking to: either stories or stats are the best
- Stories well supported by metrics!
- Stories and photos move hearts. Need some stats to back it up.
- “1/3 stats and 2/3 stories”
- We need both to share the full picture.

Direct Mail voter comments:

- Majority of our owners are still “old-school” and it works!
- Most baby boomers still like snail mail
- Direct mail is still more effective!
- DUH!
- ROI is worth it for the impact
- I get dozens of emails and only a few letters
- Our group responds to direct mail
- Greater impact
- Next GEN excited to get real mail
- Now days mail is exciting :-)
- Seems to get more response now
- Doesn't get buried in their in box
- Our donors appreciate our mailers
- Not a big enough email list potential for donor base so use direct mail

E-Mail voter comments:

- Easier to send emails on the fly, also cheaper
- Easier and less expensive but must get it “open”
- Sending birthday emails and special occasion emails is good
- I prefer email because of the quickness of delivery
- Email makes it easier to connect with people in real time
- Raised more connections and retention with emails this year
- Younger donors email

Direct Mail + E-Mail voter comments:

- Use an integrated campaign
- Use multi channels
- It depends!
- Do for the right audiences!
- Both. Depends on the audience.
- Both, it depends
- Both!
- Mix it up to keep it fresh and depends on audiences
